

Latroy

I'd rather be outside!

Energetic, colorful and full of life, Latroy, who likes to be called TJ, is a loving, sweet natured child. Born in November of 1997, this youth of African-American and Caucasian descent is very active and loves the outdoors. On any given Saturday afternoon you can find TJ outside in the park riding his bike, playing with friends or practicing his fancy karate moves. Adventure is TJ's middle name and he enjoys exploring new things. In fact, one of his recent accomplishments includes trying out for the local gymnastic team.

This future track star is hopeful and optimistic despite some of his academic challenges. He receives academic support and his grades steadily improve. When asked about TJ recently, his caretaker stated that "He loves being a part of a family; he loves doing things and is very helpful." TJ would thrive in an active, loving family with a strong male role model. Please consider opening your heart and your home to this awesome young man!
